| Available > Registered        | Triggered by the receipt of a create request to register the domain name.The sponsoring Registrar is charged for the creation amount.This transition begins the Add Grace Period.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | addPeriod        | add period        |
| Registered > Pending Transfer | Triggered by the receipt of a transfer request command. The transfer request remains pending for 5 days awaiting action, where if no action is taken by either the gaining or losing Registrar, the transfer is auto-approved by the Registry.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | transferPeriod   | transfer period   |
| Pending Transfer > Registered | Triggered by one of the below operations: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Cancel: The gaining Registrar cancels their transfer request.</li> <li>Reject: The losing Registrar rejects the transfer.</li> <li>Approve: The losing Registrar approves the transfer and the registration period is extended by 1 year; this begins the Transfer Grace Period.</li> <li>Auto-Approve: In case of inaction for 5 days, the Registry approves the transfer and the registration period is extended by 1 year; this begins the Transfer Grace Period.</li> </ul> | transferPeriod   | transfer period   |
| Registered > Redemption       | On receipt of a delete request where the domain name is not in the Add Grace Period, it transitions to the Redemption state for 30 days.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | redemptionPeriod | redemption period |
| Redemption > Pending Restore  | On receipt of a restore request, if the Redemption period has not lapsed, the domain name transitions to the 'Pending Restore' state. The sponsoring Registrar is charged a fee for the restore request.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | pendingRestore   | pending restore   |
| Pending Restore > Redemption  | 7 days after the transition to the Pending Restore state, if no restore report is received the domain name transitions to the 'Redemption' state, which begins a new 30 day Redemption period.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | redemptionPeriod | redemption period |
| Redemption > Pending Delete   | 30 days after the transition to the Redemption state, if no restore request is received the domain name transitions to the Pending Delete state for 5 days. The domain name is scheduled for purge after 5 days.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | pendingDelete    | pending delete    |

| Add          | 5             | Allows for the no-cost cancellation of domain registrations resulting from typing mistakes and other errors by Registrars and registrants—beginning on the creation of a domain and lasting for 5 days. When the following operations are performed during this period these rules apply: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>▪ Delete: The sponsoring Registrar, who must have created the domain, may delete the domain and receive a refund. The domain is deleted with immediate effect. Note that Registry Operators may have policies limiting the volume of deletions within a specific period as a means to prevent domain tasting.</li> <li>▪ Renew: The sponsor may renew the domain but does not receive any refund for the initial registration fee. The Registrar is charged for the renewal operation. The total period for the domain is the sum of the initial period in the create and any renewal term, limited to a 10-year maximum.</li> <li>▪ Transfer: The System rejects all requests to transfer a domain name within 60 days of registration. Transfers facilitated through the Support Service Desk do not result in a refund for the initial registration fee.</li> <li>▪ Bulk Transfers: Under Part B of the ICANN Policy on Transfer of Registrations between Registrars, a bulk transfer can occur during the add grace period. Any bulk transfer causes the add grace period to not apply.</li> </ul> The add grace period does not have any impact on other commands. |
| Renew        | 5             | Allows the sponsoring Registrar to undo a renewal via the deletion of a domain—beginning on the receipt of a renewal command and lasting for 5 days. If any of the following operations are performed during this period these rules apply: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>▪ Delete: The sponsoring Registrar, who must have initiated the renewal, may delete the domain and receive a renewal fee refund. The extension to the registration period caused by the preceding renew is reversed and unless the domain is also in the add grace period, the domain enters the redemption state. If also in the add grace period it is deleted with immediate effect and available for registration.</li> <li>▪ Renew: The sponsoring Registrar, who must have performed the initial renew, can subsequently renew the domain again, causing a second independent renewal grace period to start. The Registrar is charged for the operation and the total registration period for the domain is extended by the renewal term, limited to the 10-year maximum.</li> <li>▪ Transfer: An approved transfer command ends the current renew grace period without a refund and begins a transfer grace period.</li> <li>▪ Bulk Transfers: Bulk transfers cause the renew grace period to end without a refund, consequently registration periods are not changed.</li> </ul> The renew grace period has no impact on other commands.                                                                      |

| Auto-Renew     | 45            | Allows for domains to remain in the DNS past registration expiration while giving adequate time for the sponsoring Registrar to obtain intention of renewal from the registrant. This period begins on the expiration of the domain and lasts for 45 days. If any of the following are performed during this period, these rules apply: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>▪ Delete: The sponsoring Registrar, who must be the sponsor when the auto-renew grace period commenced, may delete the domain. The registration period applied as a result of the auto-renew is reversed and the domain enters the redemption state. The System will charge the Registrar for the auto-renewal at the expiration of the auto-renew grace period, unless the Registrar deletes the domain prior to expiration.</li> <li>▪ Renew: The sponsoring Registrar, who must be the sponsor when the auto-renew occurred, can renew the domain again causing an independent renewal grace period to begin. The Registrar is charged, and the registration period is extended by the renewal term, limited to the 10-year maximum.</li> <li>▪ Transfer: An approved transfer command ends the current auto-renew grace period with a refund to the losing Registrar and begins a transfer grace period. The registration period auto-renew extension is reversed, and the registration is extended by the period specified in the transfer.</li> <li>▪ Bulk Transfers: Bulk transfers cause the auto-renew grace period to end without a refund consequently registration periods are not changed.</li> </ul> The auto-renew grace period does not have any impact on other commands. |
| Transfer       | 5             | Allows the sponsoring Registrar to undo the registration period extension (due to a transfer command), via the deletion of a domain. This period begins on a transfer completion and lasts for 5 calendar days. If the following are performed during the period these rules apply: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>▪ Delete: The sponsoring Registrar, who must have initiated the transfer, may delete the domain and receive a transfer fee refund. The extension to the registration period of the preceding transfer is reversed and the redemption state is entered.</li> <li>▪ Renew: The sponsoring Registrar can renew the domain thus causing an independent renewal grace period to begin. The Registrar is charged and the registration period for the domain is extended by the renewal term, limited to the 10-year maximum.</li> <li>▪ Transfer: Under Part A of the ICANN Policy on Transfer of Registrations between Registrars a transfer may not occur during the 60-day period after transfer (except in special circumstances). The System enforces this—effects of transfer do not require consideration. Should a special situation require transfer back to the losing Registrar, this is dealt with by taking into account the specific situation. The System does not allow this without intervention by GoDaddy Registry employees.</li> <li>▪ Bulk Transfers: Bulk transfers cause the transfer grace period to end without a refund, consequently registration periods are not changed.</li> </ul> The transfer grace period does not have any impact on other commands.                                                              |
| Redemption     | 30            | Redemption grace period refers to the period of time the domain spends in the Redemption state, starting after a domain is deleted. The Redemption state description provides information on operations during this period. During this period the sponsoring Registrar may request the restoration of the domain name which may incur a non-refundable fee.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Restore        | 5             | During the Redemption grace period the sponsoring Registrar may request to restore the domain name with a restore request command. The restore request will place the domain name in pending restore state and the restore grace period will be applied. During this time, the sponsoring Registrar must provide a restore report to fully restore the domain name. If a restore report is not supplied during this time, then the domain name will re-enter Redemption.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
